To Whom It May Concern:

I write this letter in recommendation of Pyramid Contracting as a general contractor. We had the pleasure of working with the Pyramid team on the renovation of the historic University of South Carolina Spigner House in 2011 and 2012.

Throughout the course of the renovation, under the management of Wade Bozeman, the entire project team was consummate professionals. Not only were they accurate in their initial assessment of the scope and cost of our project, they provided the Owner and design team with an 'open book' policy of their record keeping and critical path schedule items. Furthermore, and given the unique complexities of this renovation, they were also helpful in their efforts to find solutions to unforeseen construction-related issues that were cost and time efficient. They also provided complete and thorough close-out documents as required without the omissions and mistakes we typically see.

Additionally, as a state project requirement to achieve minimum LEED Silver certification, Pyramid went above and beyond to ensure that all subcontractors were providing the necessary documentation and products required. This effort and attention to detail resulted in exceeding the state requirement and the project was awarded LEED-CI Gold certification upon completion of the project; a very difficult achievement on a project with such design and financial constraints.

It is without reserve that we recommend Pyramid Contracting as a general contractor. If we can be of any further assistance or should you need additional information, please don't hesitate to contact us directly.

Sincerely,
